Mistakes From Faintness of Heart Not To Be Made, President Declares

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—

Franklin Delano Roosevelt, inaugurated today as President of the United States for the fourth time, warned that we shall have no lasting peace if we approach its commitments with suspicion, mistrust and fear.

He took the oath of his office on the south portico of the White House instead of the east capitol steps where inaugurations traditionally are held. Some 7,000 specially invited guests stood on the snow-sodden lawn below him.

Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone administered the oath a few minutes after noon. Just before Mr. Roosevelt was sworn his 1944 running mate Harry S. Truman of Missouri took the oath of office as vice president. It was administered by Henry A. Wallace, who was chosen by Mr. Roosevelt as his campaign partner in 1940 but was discarded last year in favor of the Missourian.

Mr. Roosevelt, Truman, their families and their closest political associates and friends were in the shelter of the south portico.

Weather Good

The other card-holding, carefully-sifted guests stood below, churning a two-inch snow into the White House turf. This was not the worst inauguration weather of record—the Taft affair in 1909 and Mr. Roosevelt's 1937 ceremony were in a class by themselves. But this was no day for an outdoor party unless the date was fixed by the constitution.

For the President this day was one of prayer. For him it began with family prayers at 10 a. m. in the east room of the White House. On each of his successive inaugurations he has sought divine guidance.

To the inaugural guests after the oath-taking he said:

"We pray to Him for the vision to seek our way clearly—to see the way that leads to a better life for ourselves and for all our fellow men to the achievement of His will to peace on earth."

The cost of the war is a fearful cost, he told them, and from it we are learning our lesson. And he promised better days to come.

Supreme Test

"We Americans today, together with our Allies," the President said, "are passing through a period of supreme test. It is a test of our (Continued on Page Two)

Japanese Officials To Dig In

Underground Office Plan Indicates Gravity Of Yankee Air Raids

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—Japan today announced the allocation of $460,000,000 to move government offices underground "on a permanent basis" and otherwise expand air raid defenses.

The announcement, broadcast by the official Domei News Agency, underlined the gravity with which Japan views the expanding American air offensive against her home islands.

Domei said the move was part of the five-point program drawn up last week by Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso's government to "augment Japan's total war efforts" in the face of increasing air raids and the American advances in the Philippines.

"One of the significant features of the appropriation is the fund earmarked for construction of tunnel air raid shelters," FCC monitors quoted Domei as saying.

"These shelters will be used not only for housing civilians during the raids, but plans are under way to transfer vital installations of the government to these shelters on a permanent basis."

Radio Tokyo also reported that an inventor in Kyoto had developed a "tunnel-digging machine" which would play an important role in constructing new sites for evacuated war factories.

It was obvious that Japan intended to devote the entire $460,000,000 to the shelter and protection of Japanese civilians.

FRIENDS CLAIM WALLACE WILL SUCCEED JONES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—Friends of retiring Vice President Henry A. Wallace claimed today that he would succeed Jesse Jones not only as secretary of commerce, but as chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as well.

Heretofore most speculation has linked Wallace only with the commerce job, with Jones figured to retain the RFC chairmanship. But some Wallace adherents, including one congressional source who campaigned actively for the Iowan in his unsuccessful renomination fight at the Democratic convention last July, told the United Press that Wallace was "in" for both jobs.

There was no hint from either Wallace or Jones that this was so. Both sat at the head table—nine seats apart—at a presidential inaugural given last night by members of the electoral college.

Wallace introduced his successor, Harry S. Truman, in a brief, unrevealing speech during which he continually smiled and chuckled as if something pleased him very much.

Jones did not make a speech. But he was observed to drink a furtive champagne toast of mysterious significance with Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, two seats away.

Miss Perkins reportedly is on her way out, too.

YOUTHFUL SLAYER OF FATHER DECLARED SANE

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 20—Harry E. Byers, Jr., 17, was held for grand jury action today in connection with the Jan. 5 slaying of his father after state alienists reported to Juvenile Judge Clayton W. Rose that the youth was sane.

Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett said he will seek a first degree murder indictment. If convicted, Byers would face possible execution in the electric chair.

The youth confessed he shot his father because he was "mean" to him. Police apprehended the youth when the automobile he was driving became stuck in a snow drift near a ditch where he had attempted to dispose of his father's body.

HOW REDS CAME BACK--ALL THE WAY TO GERMANY

RUSSIA'S MIGHTY ARMIES are at the door of the German homeland in the Reds' latest winter offensive and already have driven the Nazis back more than 1,150 miles from Stalingrad, where the German eastward surge was stopped after days and days of heroic defense in early 1943. The Reds still are approximately 250 miles from Berlin, but the Germans are being pushed back. (International)

SOVIET BARES NEW ATROCITIES

Huns Shoot Children Like Clay Pigeons, Freeze Men In Barrels of Water

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—Nazi commandants of a prison camp in Lvov were accused by the Soviet Union today of shooting Russian children like clay pigeons, freezing men to death in barrels of water and slashing boys in half with hatchets.

The accusations were made in the latest official Soviet report on war crimes committed by the Nazis in the Lvov area—crimes that the Soviet Union charged resulted in the extermination of 700,000 Soviet citizens plus nationals of other United Nations. The report was printed in the Soviet embassy's information bulletin.

One of the most ghastly parts of the report told about S. S. Obersturmfuehrer Gustav Wilhouse who "partly for sport and partly to amuse his wife and daughter used to fire regularly from a Tommy gun on the balcony of the camp office at prisoners occupied in the workshop."

Wife Also Accused
"Then he would pass his Tommy gun to his wife, who shot at them," the report said.

"On one occasion, Wilhouse was said to have made someone toss two four-year-old children into the air while he fired at them. His daughter applauded and cried: 'Papa, do it again; papa do it again!'" he did so."

A Gestapo commissar in the same prison camp, according to the report, boasted to his associates that he could cut a boy in half with one blow of a hatchet.

"They did not believe him," the report said, "so he caught a 10-year-old boy in the street, forced him to his knees made him put his palms together and hide his face in them, and with a single blow of the hatchet slashed him in two."

MAN REFUSED STEAK COMES BACK WITH COW

WORLAND, Wyo., Jan. 20—Irrked because his favorite restaurant was out of steaks, Bob Orchard, rancher and stockman, left the eating place only to return a short time later with his own beef on the hoof which he offered to the cafe "as is."

The management declined the offer because the animal had not gone through regular rationing channels.

OLD COW HAND YEARS FOR GOOD OLD DAYS

PUEBLO, Colo., Jan. 20—At 60, George Fox, a cowboy, decided today that he "ain't the man he used to be."

ROOSEVELTS IN ABUNDANCE AT INAUGURATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—There are so many members of the Roosevelt family here for the inauguration that the White House can not tell you who they all are.

Press requests for a list of the family were rejected by the White House with the explanation that their list was "incomplete." Reporters were told to make a check at the buffet luncheon after the inauguration today and maybe they could find the answer then.

Actually, the White House was being overrun by grandchildren ranging from two to 15 years of age. It was possible that Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, who lives at the White House, would be the only one of the President's children on hand for the inaugural. Col. James Roosevelt and his wife, the former Romelle Schneider, were reported delayed by weather in their plane trip from the west coast. The other sons, Elliott, John and Franklin, Jr., were on active duty with the armed forces abroad.

CIGARET TRUCKS USING STEALTH ON DELIVERIES

COLUMBUS, Jan. 20—Desperation of cigaret smokers had reached such a point here today that some tobacco jobbers were making deliveries to retailers in secret, in fearing attempted hijackings.

Delivery trucks were making many of their trips at night when the company signs on the bodies were less conspicuous. One driver said he never followed the same route twice and that he had been ordered not to tell even retailers when to expect him.

Most deliveries were being made through back entrances to prevent a "run" on supplies. Arrival of a tobacco truck in front of a store invariably heralds a scramble for places in line.

Supplies released to retailers have dropped to a comparative trickle and harassed clerks said their customers are becoming abusive at the reiterated "sorry, we're really out."

Dealers admitted they had little optimism over proposed card rationing to be applied to regular, recognized customers. Service to regulars already had become the rule except in spots drawing principally transient customers.

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Jan. 20—"K" rations are O. K. but . . . Sgt. William Dryer, who has been stationed in Italy two-and-a-half years, sent this request for his family in Waynesburg:

"Send me a roll of salami, quick, with plenty of garlic in it."

He will get the salami.

YANKS LACKING PROPER DRESS

Soldiers Suffer Because of Blunder In Providing Proper Equipment

PARIS, Jan. 20—There are doughboys crouching in foxholes blasted with TNT out of the frozen hillsides of the Ardennes today—fighting frigid death and trench foot with stubborn ingenuity while battling German tanks and infantrymen.

The freezing of feet and fingers and the horrible disintegration of flesh due to poor circulation, which is known as trench foot, are taking a high toll in some sectors.

We are so accustomed to patting ourselves on the back for having the best planes, guns and transport that it comes as a shock to discover that somebody blundered sadly in failing to provide proper equipment for this arduous winter campaign.

"Why could not somebody have thought to provide the right kind of boots, the right kind of jackets and mittens," these boys ask at the front. They stick out their hands, blue and chapped from inadequate wool, or wool and leather GI gloves. They tug at their combat jacket which is not wind proof, or point to their combat boots that are fine for marching on dry terrain, but fail to keep out the wet and cold.

Bitter Questions

When a doughboy must lie in 20 inches of snow for three hours without his overcoat—they can not fight in an unwieldy overcoat—waiting for the order to advance not daring to light a fire or stand up to thresh arms and stir the circulation, that question about clothing comes through bitter lips.

STRIKING NAZI PRISONERS ON BREAD, WATER

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 20—The nearly 400 German prisoners of war at Jefferson Barracks here went into a third day on bread and water today as post officers flatly declined to negotiate a compromise settlement of a work strike.

The strike began when a lone war prisoner left his job, precipitating a sympathy walk-off by the remaining 23 members of his labor detail after he was placed in solitary confinement on bread and water. His fellows were being disciplined by confinement to the compound's guardhouse and the same diet.

When the remaining enemy soldiers joined the first group in their refusal to carry out assigned duties, bread and water became official rations for all.

The prisoners told Jefferson Barracks officers they would go back to work only if the original strikers were not punished further. This demand and others, undisclosed, were met by emphatic refusal or army officials to even discuss terms.

315 B-29 BOMBS HIT JAPANESE AIRCRAFT PLANT

Photos Show Superforts All But Obliterate Vital Nip Factory

RECORD SET BY RAID

Target Wiped Out, No Planes Missing and None Ditched

HEADQUARTERS 21ST BOMBER COMMAND, Guam, Jan. 20—

American Superfortresses raiding the important Kawasaki aircraft plant in the Osaka-Kobe industrial area yesterday scored at least 315 direct bomb hits in a 4,000-foot radius of the factory, all but obliterating the engine plant, photographs revealed today. Hundreds of bombs cascading down from the giant B-29s hit the huge plant "right on the nose," indicating that the raid was the most successful ever undertaken by Marianas-based Superforts on a Japanese aircraft factory.

It was the first time the Kawasaki plant, situated near Kobe on Japan's main island of Honshu, had been attacked and photographs revealed that two-thirds of the south and west portions were completely gutted by fire and blast damage.

Concentrated Bursts

In addition, a concentration of bomb bursts was reported in the engine assembly plant, warehouse area and dispersal area, which is the large airfield adjacent to the factory. Fires also were reported burning on the north, south and west portions of the engine plant and the forge foundry building area was covered with smoke.

Six hits also were scored on the warehouse across the railroad tracks from the foundry and 15 bursts were counted directly on the main assembly building where (Continued on Page Two)

JAP SUBMARINE HAS GREAT DAY SHOOTING YANKS

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20—A Japanese submarine, roaming the Pacific between Honolulu and San Francisco, torpedoed and sunk the Liberty ship John A. Johnson last November and machine-gunned and rammed survivors, killing at least 10 of the 70-man crew and wounding six others.

The incident, believed to be the first submarine action near the American mainland since Oct. 25, 1942, was reported in navy-sponsored interviews with survivors. The 60 survivors were spotted by search planes and rescued the following day by the Navy motor yacht Argus.

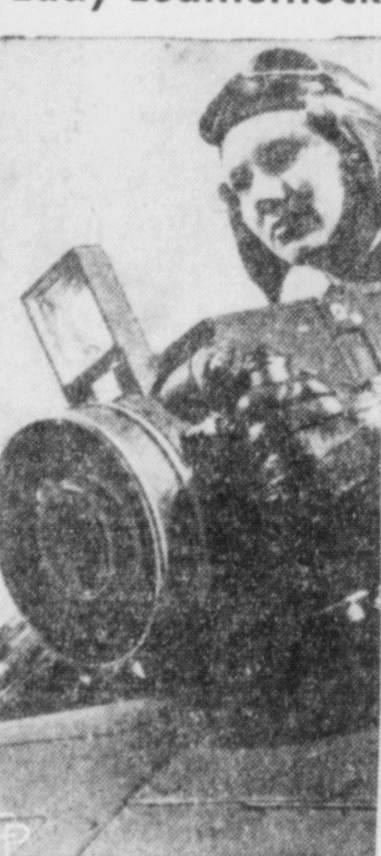

The torpedo struck without warning and the men abandoned ship when she began to break up. A half hour later the submarine surfaced on the moonlit waters and criss-crossed the oil-smeared sea in search of survivors who hid behind floating sacks of flour and prayed.

The Japs gleefully ran up and down the deck of the submarine, chattering like monkeys, and shouting "banzai" and "you American sons of ----," while they sprayed the waters with machine gun bullets and rammed loaded lifeboats. Lt. (JG) Wynn Del Yates, USNR, 32 Salt Lake City, reported Yates was the commander of the gun crew aboard the vessel.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—Salvation Army Maj. Albert Avery forgave the man accused of stealing from a Brooklyn station of the army, but indignantly denied the suspect's charge that a stolen clock wouldn't run. "He just didn't know how to start it," said Avery. "That clock keeps perfect time."

HOUSE MAKES IT WORK - OR - ELSE

"Fight" Tag Dropped, But Lively Floor Battle Is Forecast

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—House military affairs committee members predicted today that they would finish writing a war-work-or-else bill Monday despite the fact that they still face "bloc" fights over questions of farm deferments and union membership.

A lively floor fight over the bill is predicted, with at least one committee member promising to oppose the measure when it comes before the house.

The bill dropped its "work-or-fight" tag yesterday when the committee voted 15 to 2 to accept an amendment by Rep. Paul Kilday, D. Tex., substituting civilian penalties for the army work-battalion draft proposed in the original measure.

The "draft dodger" penalties in the Kilday amendment would make violators refusing to work at essential jobs liable to fines up to $10,000 and imprisonment for not more than five years or both.

To List Industry

The committee also approved an amendment by Rep. John Sparkman, D. Ala., to give War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes authority to designate essential industries for deferred men, striking out the provision giving this authority to Selective Service Director Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey.

Meanwhile Rep. William Lemke, R. N. D., claiming the support of 225 house members, said he would introduce a resolution Monday to compel local draft boards to defer irreplaceable farm workers.

TURKEY SAID TO BE READY TO FIGHT NAZIS

PARIS, Jan. 20—Turkey has made an offer to the Allies to declare war on Germany and contribute 25 fully equipped divisions immediately, diplomatic sources here reported today.

Although there was no official confirmation, the sources said the development was considered likely since Turkey's failure, despite an alliance with Britain, to contribute to the Allied victory would deny her a place at the peace table.

GERMANS ADMIT NAZI ARMIES IN FULL RETREAT

HUNS DRIVE IN WEST

Enemy Believed Striving To Recoup Northeast Part of France

By United Press

Soviet forces have driven into East Prussia from the south and in the north are advancing rapidly westward on the road to Koenigsberg, Berlin admitted today as the Germans fell back in full retreat before five Russian armies on a jagged line stretching 600 miles through Poland to the Carpathians.

The Germans held the initiative in Northeastern France, where, although American Seventh Army troops beat off a furious attack on their Maginot line positions, the enemy was sending reinforcements across the Rhine in a developing offensive resembling the Ardennes drive. The British and Americans made further steady gains in the Ardennes and Roer river salients despite heavy snow storms which slowed their movements.

In the Pacific, field dispatches from Luzon said American armored columns had driven 50 miles inland along the road to Manila almost to the road hub of Tarlac, and were only 25 miles from the Clark field air center.

Sweeping Advances

Moscow dispatches said East Prussia, German Silesia and Western Poland have been laid open by the Russian winter "victory" offensive in eight days of sweeping advances.

The two Red armies driving into East Prussia from Lithuania and along its southern order toward Danzig were developing a pincers around the province in a bid to cut it off from the Reich.

The invasion of the province from the south was reported by Ernst von Hammer, Nazi military commentator, who said Soviet tanks had penetrated to Gilgenburg, just inside the border at a point 90 miles south of Koenigsberg and 85 miles southeast of Danzig. The thrust represented a 14-mile advance from the Polish town of Dzialdowo, captured by the Russians yesterday.

Von Hammer also reported a Russian spearhead had fought into Gumbinnen only 16 miles from Insterburg and 74 from Koenigsberg.

Moscow dispatches said two-thirds of Poland already has been liberated and the next major objectives are Danzig, Poznan and the Silesian stronghold of Breslau. At latest official reports, the Russians had reached the Silesian frontier at Praszka, 60 miles east of Breslau and 228 miles southeast of Berlin, in the area where they (Continued on Page Two)

LESS CHICKEN, SUGAR, BUTTER, WFA FORECAST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—Less sugar, butter and chicken—that was the War Food Administration's cheerless forecast today.

Sugar—WFA said 1945 supplies will fall 600,000 tons below the 6,000,000 tons used in 1944. The WFA has allocated 112,000 tons less for the January-March period of 1945 than was issued in the same period last year.

Butter—The average citizen must expect 10 pounds of butter this year compared with about 12 pounds last year.

Chicken—Supplies due for a marked drop, particularly in the first quarter of the year, due to extraordinarily heavy army buying.

MORE RED POINTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—The Office of Price Administration will probably validate six red stamps—worth 60 points—for the five-week period from Jan. 23 through March 3, it was learned today. Only five red stamps, or 50 points, were validated for the current ration period, which is only four weeks long.

courage—of our resolve—of our wisdom—of our essential decency. "If we meet that test—successfully and honorably—we shall perform a service of historic importance which men and women and children will honor throughout all time."

Challenging the isolationist philosophy, Mr. Roosevelt said we had learned that we must "live as men, not as ostriches, nor dogs in the manger."

In the peace, he said, we shall strive for perfection, knowing that it is unobtainable at once but knowing, too, that we "cannot live alone at peace, that our own well being is dependent on the well being of other nations, far away."

"We can gain no lasting peace," he continued, "if we approach it with suspicion and mistrust—and with fear. We can gain it only if we proceed with the understanding and confidence and courage which flow from conviction."

Top Flight Assembly
Diplomats, political figures of local and national importance, the cabinet, the judiciary, the top figures of the armed service, a few campaign contributors were in the crowd of inauguration guests. They listened in chill and solemn silence as Mr. Roosevelt uttered his fourth inaugural address, a quickie of 540 words. He told them it was appropriate that this occasion be both simple and brief.

To the south, outside the White House fence and some hundreds yards away was the public. Loud speakers carried the words uttered up there on the south portico, but the public couldn't see much nor distinguish who was who.

"As I stand here today," said Mr. Roosevelt, "having taken the solemn oath of office in the presence of my fellow countrymen—in the presence of our God—I know that it is America's purpose that we shall not fail."

"In the days and in the years that are to come we shall work for a just and durable peace as today we work and fight for total victory in war."

"We can and will achieve such peace."

Seek Perfection

"We shall strive for perfection. We shall not achieve it immediately—but we shall strive. We may make mistakes—but they must never be mistakes which result from faintness of heart or abandonment of moral principles."

"I remember that my old schoolmaster said, in days that seemed to us then to be secure and untroubled; 'things in life will not always run smoothly. Sometimes we will be rising toward the heights—then all will seem to reverse itself and start downward. The great fact to remember is that the trend of civilization itself is forever upward; that a line drawn through the middle of the peaks and valleys of the centuries always has an upward trend.'"

"Our constitution of 1787 was not a perfect instrument; it is not perfect yet. But it provided a firm base on which all manner of men, of all races and colors and creeds, could build our solid structure of democracy."

"Today in this year of war, 1945, we have learned lessons—at a fearful cost—and we shall profit by them."

"We have learned that we cannot live alone, at peace; that our own well being is dependent on the well being of other nations, far away. We have learned that we must live as men, not as ostriches, nor as dogs in the manger."

Citizens of World
"We have learned to be citizens of the world, members of the human community."

"We have learned the simple truth, as Emerson said, that 'the only way to have a friend is to be one.'"

Mr. Roosevelt ended with his prayer for vision and peace on earth.

"The Almighty God," he said, "has blessed our land in many ways. He has given our people strong arms with which to strike mighty blows for freedom and truth. He has given to our country a faith which has become the hope of all peoples in an anguished world. We pray to him now for vision—"

It was all over, the important parts, almost before the guests and fence peepers knew it had begun. While some few still were shuffling to their appointed places Captain William F. Santelmann flipped a baton and the United States Marine band hit "Hail To The Chief" with the pomp blare of brasses that other bands, somehow, cannot achieve.

The hush that followed as the Rt. Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal bishop of Washington, delivered the invocation was in effective contrast.

Truman Takes Oath
Truman and Wallace stepped up to the microphone to shift the responsibilities of the $15,000-year vice presidency. Less than a minute sufficed for that.

Mr. Roosevelt and the chief justice were next. The President's big palm on the old, familiar "faith, hope and charity" verse in the ancient Bible that is written in Dutch, Stone spoke and the President repeated after him— "... will to the best of my ability preserve, protect, and defend the constitution of the United States." Then it was Mr. Roosevelt's turn to speak on his own, with the nation and the world listening in.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John A. Ryan, director of the social action department of the national Catholic welfare conference, uttered the benediction.

Program Ends
That was all. The band hit up the Star Spangled Banner. Inside the White House, servants were ready with coffee, cakes and chicken salad to give a dab of food and a lot of White House hospitality to 1,500 or more guests.

There is a big party tonight, sponsored by the $1,000 club, each member of which anted up no less individually toward Mr. Roosevelt's campaign expenses. And there will be much lifting of glasses and celebrating on into the night. But the show will have been over by many hours by that time. It really ended a little after noon today when, after an appropriate moment of pause, Mr. Roosevelt said to Chief Justice Stone: "I do solemnly swear. . . ."

Guests Assemble
Inauguration guests began assembling some time before noon—the diplomats, cabinet-congressional bigwigs, visiting politicians, presidential electors, members of the $1,000 Club which contributed to Mr. Roosevelt's 1944 campaign. The club is meeting here today.

Five of the 15 minutes allotted for the whole outdoor ceremony were for Mr. Roosevelt's fourth inaugural address, a document he sought to limit to 500 words. From 1,500 to 2,000 of the guests had invitations to storm into the White House for a 1 p. m. buffet luncheon—chicken salad, coffee and little cakes. There will be a tea and reception this afternoon for the presidential electors and Democratic party leaders, who are here in considerable numbers.

This is Mr. Roosevelt's first wartime inauguration and possibly the most solemn moment in his life, barring that blustery March day in 1933 when, aged 51, he stood on the east capitol steps calm and unafraid with his first inaugural proclamation of a New Deal. Mr. Roosevelt is 62 today and will celebrate his 63rd birthday January 30.

Tradition Takes Licking

Precedents and tradition have taken a licking since 1933. This fourth inaugural is no exception and is itself the biggest break in tradition of them all—the old tradition about two terms in the White House.

Mr. Roosevelt abruptly cancelled congressional plans to put on the customary inaugural circus. He announced that a $2,000 party would suit him and that he'd have it right in the backyard, handy to his office. He barred the public—the secret service was a factor in that. Select though today's guest list had to be, every person entering the grounds or the White House was carefully appraised by extraordinary police and secret service details. Even the top guests who were invited to enter through the White House proper instead of through a south grounds gate had to show their credentials.

The war and chances of early victory in Europe overshadow inaugural events. An uneasy public and disturbed officials look to the coming Big Three conference to reorient United Nations political actions and aspirations. They hope that causes of friction or suspicion among Washington, London and Moscow will be removed. They look to the central figure of today's ceremony to come back from the conference with some plain answers to some plain questions on a number of subjects—Poland, Germany, all of Europe.

Happier Occasion

Good news from the European and Pacific fronts made today a happier occasion than it might have been. Victory is assured. The question is merely when. But there are grave problems of the peace to be considered by Mr. Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin.

In 12 years since his first inaugural, Mr. Roosevelt has turned gradually from domestic reform to urgent matters of foreign affairs which culminated in war with Germany, Japan and some of their now reeling satellites.

Almost everything pertaining to his administrations has been big—greater or better or both than anything which went before. He has handed Republican candidates four successive and spectacular defeats at the polls.

He made radio a political instrument of incalculable significance in the United States—a trend which had its parallels throughout the world.

Seven of the nine justices of the supreme court were appointed by Mr. Roosevelt.

Unprecedented Power
He has been able to make and break congressional leaders almost at will.

He took the country off the gold standard, closed all the banks and assured the reopening of most of them, reorganized the executive branch of government and made it more powerful than either the legislature or judiciary.

Mr. Roosevelt has never run the government on tax revenue. He is budgeted now for his 13th successive treasury deficit and directs a stupendous war spending pro-were reported without Soviet confirmation to have crossed the frontier.

Nowhere along the front had the Germans yet shown signs of having reached a position where they could make a stand. Moscow accounts said enemy losses in men and material were mounting at a staggering rate, with at least 10,000 Nazis killed and 3,100 captured in the last 24 hours.

Below the Polish front, Soviet forces also were making progress. The Germans Transpennine News Agency admitted the fall of Kassa (Kosice), 13 miles inside the southern border of Czechoslovakia and 130 miles northeast of Budapest.

On the western front in Europe, field dispatches said the German offensive effort in Alsace appeared to be the second blow of a one-two counter-effort which began with the battle of the Ardennes. Having failed there, the Germans were believed to be trying to recoup in northeastern France before the Allies can readjust themselves.

The Germans were reported massing strong armored forces in their bridgehead north of Strasbourg, which had been linked in a solid line with their main front facing the Maginot line along the edge of the Haguenau forest.

At least three Nazi divisions were reported hammering at the Seventh Army's lines around Hatten and just west of the Rhine above Strasbourg, with seven to nine more divisions wheeling into attack positions on a 50-mile line running north from Strasbourg to Hatten and thence west to Biltche. A furious infantry and tank assault against the Maginot line defenses at Hatten was repulsed, but heavy fighting was continuing there today.

In the Ardennes, American First and Third Army troops held the initiative all around the shrinking German pocket, and the enemy appeared to be pulling back his remaining panzer divisions into the Siegfried line.

The British Second Army northwest of Aachen also was pushing steadily forward and was within six miles of the Roer at some points.

The weather again hampered tactical air operations over the front lines, but American heavy bombers were over Germany again in continuation of the great offensive from Britain.

gram in which the figures involved are so large as to be almost improbable. As he was sworn today the daily spending rate for war purposes was averaging more than $290,000,000. The public debt, a matter of about $16,000,000,000 when Mr. Roosevelt took office, has grown to $233,000,000,000 and will hit at least $300,000,000,000.

Defense and war spending from July 1, 1940, to Dec. 31, 1944, aggregated $244,500,000,000. The President now is shooting at a high rolling postwar economy in which the government will collect and spend about $25,000,000,000 a year, including an annual sum, yet undetermined, for the orderly liquidation of the public debt.

Mr. Roosevelt undertakes his fourth term without any commitments for or against seeking a fifth. That was the situation, too, when he was sworn four years ago for No. 3.

the quartermaster corps to provide extra clothing. He delivered hundreds of GI blankets of which there were plenty. He had numerous felt shoes manufactured for his men at a Belgian factory behind the front.

His men now shift into foxholes or drafty shell trench buildings at night with these felt shoes to protect their feet. As a result, the incidence of trench foot in his outfit is one of the lowest among front line troops.

"I don't know how we would have survived without those felt shoes," said Capt. Joseph E. Brown of Swansea, S. C. who was a victim of frozen feet, but now is well.

ective had been taken by local draft boards to mean that all deferred farm workers aged 18 to 25 must be drafted into the armed forces regardless of essentiality, thus abrogating the Tydings amendment which defers them. Lemke invited Byrnes, Hershey and War Food Administrator Marvin Jones to a closed meeting Monday to discuss the farm labor problems.

Farm Bloc Threat
If Lemke fails to get house action on his resolution by the time the work-or-else bill gets to the floor, he may attempt a farm bloc fight against the measure although Jones testified it would not affect the Tydings amendment.

Reps. Paul Stewart, D., Okla., and Arthur Winstead, D., Miss., both said they would offer amendments Monday to prohibit any man assigned to a specific industry to be required to join a union against his will.

Winstead's amendment also would "fix a penalty of fine or imprisonment for any person who interferes with such a worker."

Some committee members said they hoped to be able to approve a measure that would not go into the complications of union membership, but virtually all of them admitted that the proposal would have to be fought out on the floor if it were not ironed out in committee.

While committee members generally expressed themselves as favoring some form of new draft legislation, the opinion was by no means unanimous.

Rep. Forest A. Harness, R., Ind., said that, basing his position on testimony presented by labor and management, he would oppose the bill on the floor.

"I think they can do the job and don't think this legislation is necessary now," Harness said.

Labor and industry objected to the legislation, asserting that war department figures showing an additional 700,000 persons needed in industry by June 30 were exaggerated.

Another objection to the measure has been raised on grounds that it would take until June 30 to get the machinery rolling. Col. Francis V. Keessling Jr., selective service legislative officer, insisted this was wholly untrue.

Keessling pointed out that within two months after the original selective service act was approved on Sept. 16, 1940, the entire local, state and national draft set-up was not only created, but was in operation and the first men had been inducted.

3-WAY ACCIDENT JAMS TRAFFIC AT MILLER HILL

Route 23 traffic north of Circleville was blocked for awhile Friday night when two cars and a truck were involved in an accident.

Deputy Sheriff Vern L. Pontious said the trouble started when John Petz, Columbus, stopped at the side of the road at the front of the Miller Hill, about five miles north of Circleville. When he stopped, a car driven by E. E. Higgins, Gallipolis, slid into the rear of Petz's car. A truck, operated by S. A. McDonald, Columbus, then crashed into the rear of Higgins' car knocking it into the ditch and sending Petz's car off the road.

While efforts were being made to clear the highway two cars coming down the hill attempted to stop and slid off into the ditch. No one was injured but all vehicles involved were damaged. Deputy Pontious said.

Four bursts appeared on the field where 20 aircraft were parked. One of the latter bursts was on a gun position and two were in the plane dispersal area at the northwest of the field.

Perfect Score

All indications pointed to this raid being without doubt the most successful against Japanese aircraft plants. Certainly, from the operational standpoint it was the most successful, with no planes lost to enemy action and no ditchings.

Intelligence officers and Brig. Gen. Haywood S. Hansell's bomber command staff were elated with the results, and although not officially announced, it was reasonable to expect that later reconnaissance photographs will definitely prove this factory will not be producing for some time to come.

Claims He Had To Give Up His Plane Seat To Dog

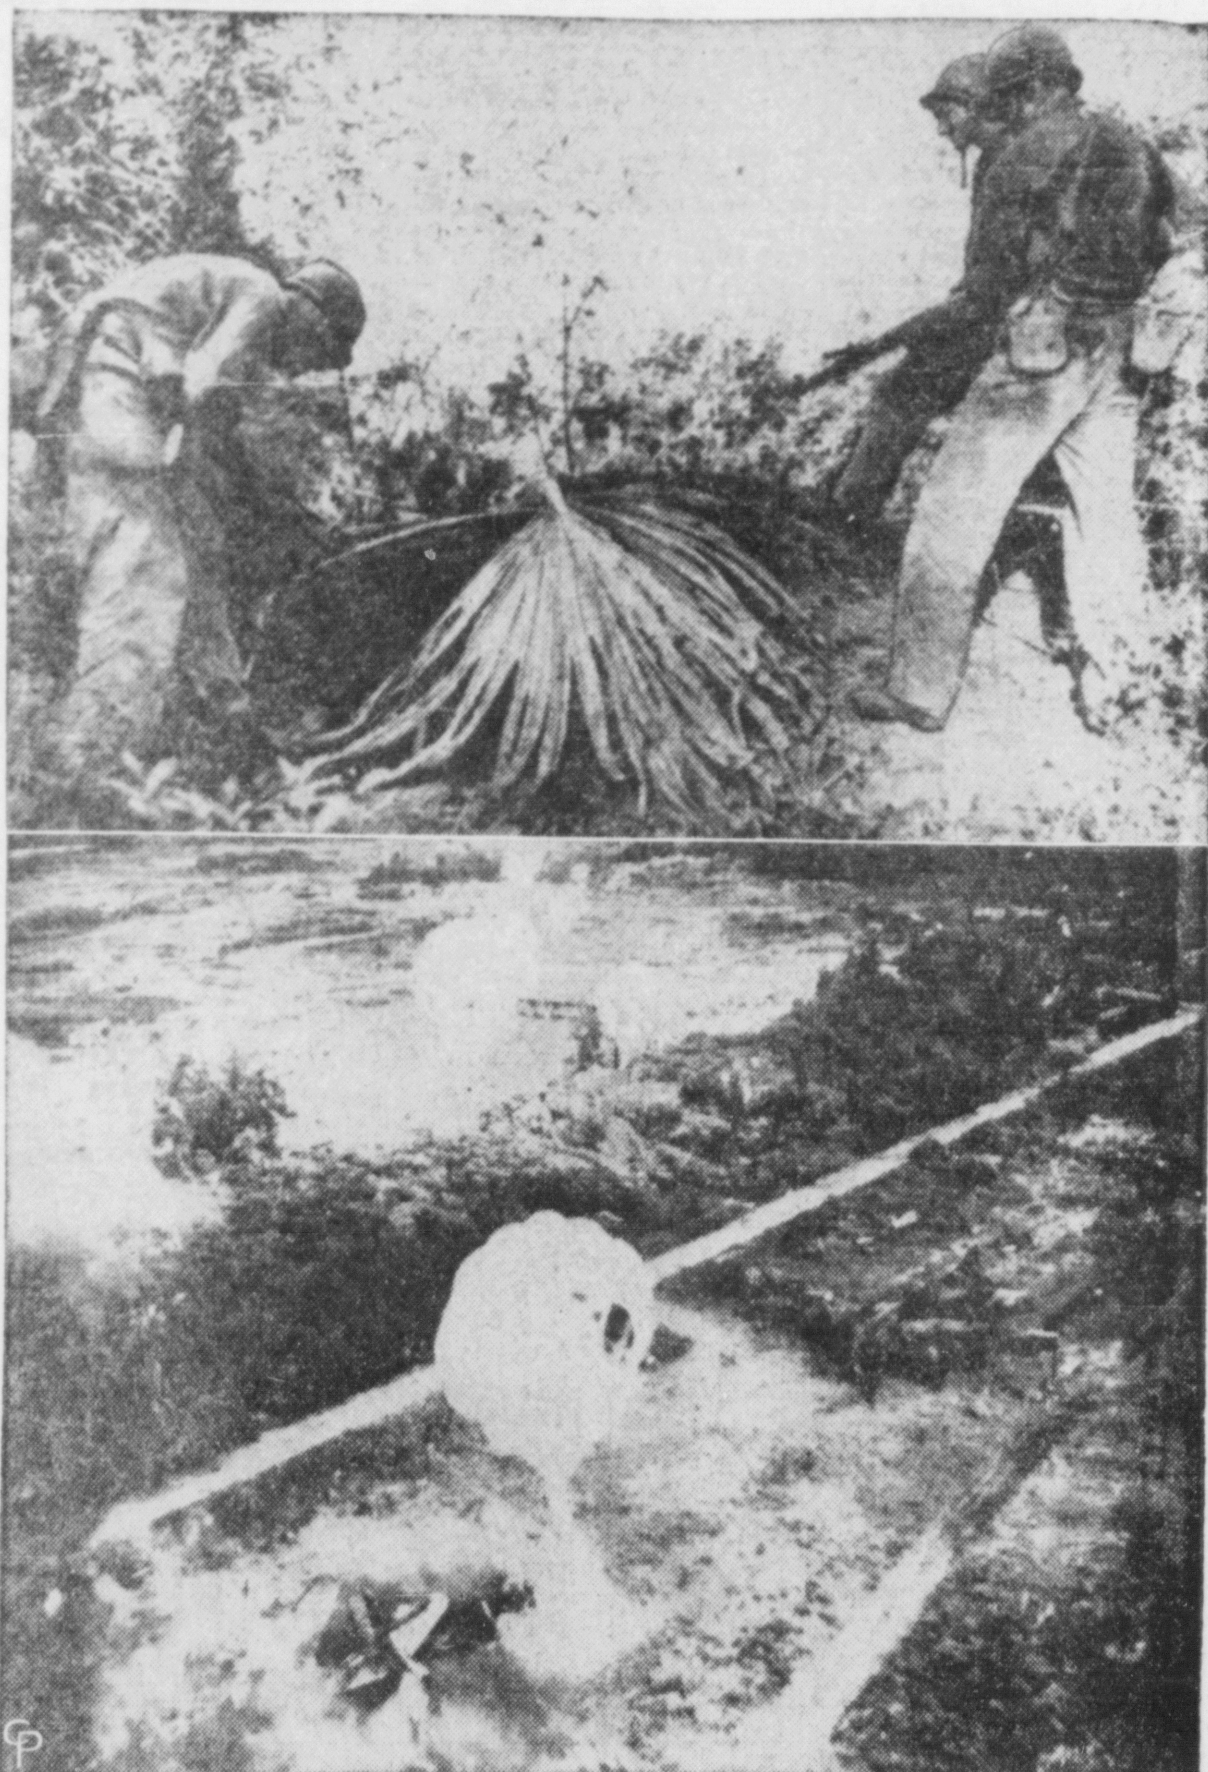

SEAMAN First Class Leon Leroy, 18, U. S. Navy gunner, created a mild sensation at Martinez, Cal., when he disclosed that he was forced to give up his seat on an Army transport plane to a dog, reportedly the property of Faye Emerson Roosevelt, Hollywood actress and recent bride of Col. Elliot Roosevelt, the President's son. Leroy said he was told the dog carried an "A" priority and that he was told he only had a "C." Leroy was traveling from New York to California following death of his father, former police chief of Antioch, Cal. Miss Emerson, told of the incident, said that her husband had shipped her dog, shown above, from England but said she didn't believe the animal was shipped on an "A" priority. Leroy is the man pictured above.

A WORLD LEAGUE

WAR winnows events, separating the wheat from the chaff. It seems to be doing so particularly now with regard to the League of Nations idea, which was defeated in a bitter fight after the last war. President Wilson is gone, but his idea finds a strong champion now in the person of Senator Vandenberg, a Republican leader, and seems to be viewed with almost equal warmth by both political parties.

It is observable, too, that churches are now taking up this problem and urging it more uniformly than they did in the last war. Their influence will be felt strongly although a canny minister warns his flock against "the illusion that any political measure or institution will completely embody the perfect will of God."

With that reservation, men and women of good will throughout the earth may well take advantage of the chastisement under which mankind is now suffering. A League of Nations will not create a perfect world over night, or indeed in many years, if ever. But nations and groups of nations can be improved, as can the individuals of whom they are composed. And the nations are likely to find, as individuals usually do, that the more closely they practice cooperation in joint efforts, the better they get along.

A BETTER BALLOT

VOTING for a man whose name you do not know is purposely made easy by many states. It is done through the so-called party column, where a cross in the circle at the top counts for all candidates below. The voter need not know a single name, yet his vote counts just as much as if he had used his intelligence.

In Ohio a bill has been introduced in the legislature to end this blind system. All candidates are grouped by offices, those running for governor arranged alphabetically by themselves; then those for lieutenant governor, and so on. The elector can still vote a straight party ticket, but he must pick out the party candidate as he goes along and put an X in front of each name. Thus he cannot help finding out who is running, and sometimes he gets a shock.

The proposed system is called the Massachusetts ballot because that state first adopted it. All parts of the country have taken it up to some extent, the 15 states being Arkansas, California, Colorado, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nevada, New York, Oregon, Tennessee and Virginia. Everybody in these states likes the system except the politicians.

One of the neatest war phrases developed is "the liquidation of the Belgium Bulge." The job itself was neat, too.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—Mr. Roosevelt highlighted his annual message with the news that we have a new superior tank.

That is true, but he did not go into the important aspect of how many we have in action, if any.

For, truth is, the Germans came slugging their way into our lines through Belgium with a better tank, at least bearing heavier guns and containing more armor, as well as more rocket planes, in which their production gave them an edge.

The efficacy of their tank is being subjected to military argument. One group contends that its superior power sacrifices maneuverability, and ours were swifter if more vulnerable. That argument is likely to continue.

There is no argument about the superiority of the rocket plane—of which we did not have enough. Nor is there any answer to the plaint of some experts that we were inferior at that front at that time in quality of these, our best weapons.

Yet, of course, the final answer is we have been slowly shrinking the salient, narrowing the passages of escape from the drive which shook and scared the whole nation, much more than it did authorities here. Announced casualties of 40,000 for us during our losing part of the fighting, were less than half what experts expected.

The positions we have now are offensively powerful, but there is wide room for doubt as to how far we can go. The Germans have used their reserves rather fully, and there is, of course, hope that they can be finally crushed, swiftly. But no one I know in any position of authority, is counting on that.

They all seem to be relying on the Spring drive to clean up that front. It must be conceded our offensive plans (if not also our power) were thrown completely off balance by the Nazi drive.

The Germans have retired very skillfully, as is their usual custom. They seem to be better in retreat than in offense, with the tricks they picked up in Russia.

Yet, whenever the weather has been half decent for flying, our planes have been able to take heavy tolls of men and materials. The further extent of this destruction depends on weather.

Dark reports and rumors always fly fast and far on repercussions provided by any setback. There have not only been reports of a few officers sent home, and accounts of blackmarketing by some others of our military men (reflecting a somewhat demoralizing condition, perhaps no greater than here at home, but certainly less to be expected or countenanced at the battleline), but also rumors of dissatisfaction with General Eisenhower.

The criticism of the general so far aired, can be traced mainly down to misinterpretation or overexpansion of a British situation, and indeed it came through the British press.

The British wanted Marshal Montgomery named as deputy supreme commander of the whole West European theater. Their people in authority offered no complaint regarding Eisenhower or his tactics, or mentioned none.

As a matter of fact they seem to think him a good general, but they wanted the prestige which would come by upping their man. This, at least, is the understanding of a senator who looked into the facts.

The American army was definitely opposed. Montgomery is a good general, but opinionated, and some people of exception. (Continued on Page Eight)

Cold Prevention

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

I DO not know how it got the name "the common cold." For some vague reason the term irritates me. I realize it's common, but so is breathing. You don't say—"He passed by my house doing common breathing and common walking and common swinging of his arms as he went. The cold weather made some common tears come to his common eyes, so he wiped them away with his common handkerchief.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Why not just say "colds"? Or coryza.

Cold Remedies

Anyway, is there anything to be done about a cold? I have before me the "1944 Year Book in Medicine" which contains digests of all the important articles on medicine from all over the world and I will tell you what it says about cold remedies. Remember this is what the book says. It is not necessarily my opinion, and I do not guarantee the statements. As Rochester says to Jack Benny, "That's what the man said. The man said that."

In the first place, vaccines for prevention of colds. Three separate reports are made in different towns by different medical observers. The studies were made in industrial plants and the attempt was to reduce absenteeism. In short, the results meant dollars and cents.

Cold Vaccines

The summary states: "No clearly evident protection against the cold and related acute respiratory infections could be demonstrated. Comparing with control groups who received no vaccine, no evidence of effective protection against either frequency or severity or complications of the common cold could be demonstrated. Indiscriminate use of cold vaccines now available is not the answer to the problem of industrial absenteeism due to acute respiratory infections."

Cod Liver Oil

Vitamins: Dr. C. Ward Cramp-ton gave a cod liver oil concentrate of 150,000 units of Vitamin A and 15,000 units of Vitamin D as an initial dose and smaller doses thereafter and found in 81 per cent of his patients that the cold was "cured, abated or favorably modified." Although no claims are made for the remedy in cold prevention, many persons have in a manner avoided colds by consistently stopping them in their prodromal stage.

But a note of pessimism breaks in with the report of other workers that the use of A and D vitamins have not proved of value in preventing or curing colds. Since colds are self-limiting, the results must be very striking before one can ascribe any influence to an agent directed towards cure.

Sulfa Drugs

Sulfa drugs: Sulfadiazine was the preparation used by Dr. Russell Cecil, Norman Plummer and Wilson G. Smilie. They point out that it is the complications of the common cold that make the trouble. The uncomplicated cold, now generally accepted as due to a filterable virus, runs a mild course, and clears up completely in four to seven days.

It is the secondary bacterial implantation which make the trouble. Against these the sulfa drugs might operate. In 66 persons, 48 were treated by sulfadiazine, 24 were untreated and observed as controls. There was a uniform decrease in the secondary bacterial infections in the nose with the use of sulfadiazine. The doctors are opposed, however, to the routine use of sulfa drugs in the common cold, and use sulfa on only those cases in which it appears complications may be imminent.

Patulin: Patulin is a form of penicillin. In a study by W. A. Hopkins of 95 patients with the common cold and 85 others used as controls when solutions of patulin were sprayed into the nose 58 per cent of the treated patients recovered completely within 48 hours, while only 9 per cent of the controls recovered that quickly. No ill effects were observed.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

I. Y.—Is it unhealthful to keep growing plants in a bedroom? I have been told they absorb the oxygen at night.

Answer:—That is just what they don't do. They give off oxygen. Goldfish can't live in a bowl without moss, and human beings can't live in a world without vegetation. But plants may bother sleepers in a bedroom because of the odor.

CORPSES AT INDIAN STONES by Philip Wylie

© 1943 BY AUTHOR—DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

"Aggie" is the familiar name for Dr. Agamemnon Telamachus Plum, 34, professor of anthropology and a bachelor, whose Aunt Sarah, a marital matchmaker, has dragged him into coming with her to Rainbow Lodge, the family summer home at Indian Stones. En route she promoted the charms of Beth Calder. Upon arrival, Aggie found a personal card: Henry H. Bogarty, impaled by a hunting knife on the front door frame. A telegram, signed "Hank," announced his coming visit "for a new grubstake"; it was received at the lodge earlier that day. He was an old friend of Sarah. "Jim" Calder, a broker, called on Sarah. After a brief clash with Aggie, he left. Old John, the family butler, told Aggie that Calder had lost lots of money for Indian Stones investors. The knife, left on the porch rail, is missing. Late that night, Aunt Sarah came to Aggie's room, obviously very ill, and he motored to Dr. George G. Davis at Medicine Lodge, nearby. The doctor's daughter, alluring Danielle, answered his knocks with lighted candles, explaining that the power system is out of order. She escorts Aggie to the garage where her father is working in his photographic dark room. She raps on the door.

CHAPTER SEVEN

The response was crisp. "Just a second! Who is it?"
"Mr. Dr. Plum has come over. Sarah's sick."
"Be right out." There was a moment of silence. "Tell him I've got to wash up—and get my bag." A lock clicked and the door opened. From the dark corridor, Aggie had a glimpse of a tight little room, crammed with photographic materials. A candle burned there, behind a red globe. He noticed one small window very high up over a sink. "I'll be only a jiffy!" Aggie said, and he slipped out. He realized Dr. Davis did not know he was standing behind Danielle. She started back down the corridor.

When they reached the living room, she inspected him attentively. "I generally find these meetings—following a common childhood—extremely disillusioning. You, at least, have made a mark somewhere—even if the rest of us haven't."

He had no idea what she did, or whether she was married, or if she was widowed or divorced—or anything else. He had forgotten her. He could see that she was a beautiful woman—and no more. He nodded.

"You look, heaven knows, like Joe Academy, the Cloistered Wonder-boy! How many honorary degrees have you by now?"

That hurt him—and annoyed him intensely besides. He thought of a retort—which, as a rule, he failed to do. "The pigtail is still there—in a figurative sense. I remember them. Blonde—basically—but vertiginous from being a mile soiled. You were a vile child, Danielle. At six—anyway."

She smiled with what seemed to be pleasure. But he could also see the rise and spread in her cheeks of a faint wrath. There was a brisk step in the rear of the house and her father came into the room.

"Aggie, old man!" He slowed for a fraction of a second at the sight of the Vandyke. "Splendid to have you here! Heard you'd be up for the summer. What in heaven's name is wrong with Sarah? Got the constitution of a loggerhead?"

Dr. George G. Davis didn't look two decades older. Only one. Crisp and lithe. Pince-nez and pin-striped suit. A really fine surgeon and neurologist—who could pass as a good banker or the director of corporations—anything successful and important. He was leading Aggie toward the door. "Got a car?"

Danielle came to the window with lighted his pipe. He sat quietly, turning his head with consummate slowness when he heard a pattering sound on the road. Dog, he thought, straining his eyes. Black dog. Funny-looking one. Like a fox. Was a fox. He puffed his pipe; the animal, seeing the eddy of smoke, also saw the man. It vanished.

Sarah's door was opening. Aggie heaved himself tiredly from the porch railing and hurried into the living room. Danielle's father was replacing things in his bag with hands so swift and dexterous it was interesting to watch him do even that.

"Got to quarantine Sarah," he said.

Aggie thought silently of a retort. "You were a vile child, Danielle. At six—anyway."

her branched sandalstick to watch them leave. Aggie glanced up from the controls. She stuck out her tongue. It took three noisy attempts to get the car in gear.

"My daughter's with me for the summer, too," the surgeon said. "First time since—" he broke off. "About Sarah?"

"She thinks it's tetanus. I don't. No rigor. Not the look in the eyes—" The other man chuckled. "We aren't diagnosing people by facial expression these days, Aggie."

"You ought to."

While the surgeon made his examination Aggie waited in a dismal circuit of anxiety for his aunt, and irritation at Danielle. Outdoors, the slow wattle of nature leaked blue up into the sky with a hue that was not normal in daytime, but dawn's sickly counterpart of noon. He could hear his aunt's voice buzzing in her room—and once she laughed, he thought. Presently he went out on the porch and examined the luminous murk, breathed the air,

Though we speak with the tongues of men and angels and give our bodies to be burned, if we are irritable or hard to live with, it all counts for nothing.—Margaret Wildemere.

Today's Horoscope

You should cultivate independence and self-assurance in your work and your associations with others. Be careful lest you become careless in your work. Give your best always, and remember that March, April, October and November are your most favorable periods for conducting business ventures. Criticism of your work may hurt your vanity on this, your birthday. However, instead of feeling piqued by what may be an honest expression of opinion, try to profit by your mistakes and convince others that you really are qualified and competent.

Hints on Etiquette

A sense of humor is a grand thing to have, but don't get into the habit of giggling idiotically or overmuch at everything that is said. That makes you a bore.

Horoscope for Sunday

You are a gay, happy, carefree person. You take life as it comes and seldom worry. Pleasure and travel interest you, and you are a popular person among your friends. You should strive to develop a sense of responsibility and be more considerate of others. Your skill and versatility will be emphasized today because the Mercury forces are focused on a potent zodiacal area.

TRUMPS VITAL STOPPERS

ONE OF the most important functions of your trump suit is its ability to act as a stopper of any other suit. If you must lose the lead to the defenders on some trick, they cannot run their own suit if you have a trump left to interrupt their fun. But if you use up all your trumps before you give them the lead, they may slaughter you with their own suit!

Standards of the Kingdom

The fame of Jesus went through all Syria, and great multitudes of people followed Him.

Preaching on the mount, Jesus said, "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted."

"Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them. MEMORY VERSE—John 11:42.

Local Methodists Vote To Join In Nation-Wide "Crusade for Christ"

The official board of the First Methodist church has voted to join with other Methodist churches in this state and throughout the nation in promoting a "Crusade for Christ" which will be in operation from now until 1948, according to the Rev. Clarence Swearingen, pastor of the church.

"The objective of the Crusade for Christ," according to Mr. Swearingen, "is basically the strengthening of the inner life of the members of the Methodist church, and the extension of its Christian services for the betterment of human life. It is launched now because of the desperate needs that have grown up not only in Europe and in Asia but in our own local American communities because of the stress and strains of the war period. It is emphasizing the welfare of people. The program does plan some rebuilding of churches, schools and hospitals destroyed or badly bombed by the war machine, but that is only because these structures serve human need."

There are five major causes which are being emphasized through the Crusade for Christ. One of these is the rehabilitation and relief of sufferers from the war—mostly the innocent victims of the war, such as children in China, in Europe, and the neglected children of various American communities. For the service which the Methodist church wants to render to these people, there is being raised a fund of $25,000,000 among the seven and a half million Methodists of the United States. The share of this total which is being raised by the First Methodist church is $2,112.00. The Rev. Mr. Swearingen says that this money is now being secured and the goal will be reached shortly.

A phase of this Crusade is the effort, begun two years ago by the Methodist church, to make the church a power in the molding of public opinion, especially with relation to cooperation among the nations of the world for a Christian post-war peace that will be just and permanent. It is felt that heretofore the church has not spoken enough and acted unitedly enough to influence the government's attitude toward proposed movements of this kind that affect the lives of millions of people the world over. Other emphases of the Crusade call for the increasing of enrollment and attendance at Sunday schools; the winning of new groups of men and women into church membership, and the development of "Christian Stewards," "who acknowledge God's claim to their time, their lives, and their possessions."

STARS SAY—

For Saturday, January 20

A SWERVE to a more stable, crystallized and secure basis in the trend of events may be looked for under the changing lunar auspices, yet the romantic, idealistic, emotional and bizarre will not entirely vanish from the day's programs and policies. There will be a concentration rather than a dissipating of the forces, with sounder incentives, well-laid-out and purposeful plans and objectives. Reasonable ambitions, sensible methods and tested merits and virtues may be assured enduring rewards.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of the stabilization of the affairs, even though these concern more poetic, romantic and idealistic expression of unusual talents or creative skills. An integration of these talents, along more constructive and workable lines, should bring proper rewards, with merit and serious effort winning recognition and putting the fortunes on a safer and more lasting foundation. Romance and happiness may find deeper and more enduring security.

A child born on this day will have inclination to develop its exceptional talents and urge for fine expression on sound and constructive foundations.

For Sunday, January 21

SUNDAY'S horoscope encourages the pursuit of the higher and more inspirational or spiritual side of life, with its inner urges and profounded ideals seeking form in a very sound and constructive way. Serious thought given to idealistic aspirations may be well recognized and developed along secure and lasting promise for the future happiness and progress. Dramatic performance may win cherished rewards.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which their highest plans and desires may develop certain sound and workable encouragement, with promise of future security and recognition, though such matter may concern ideals, dramatic talents or advanced theories. It is a time for concentrated efforts on constructive creative lines, with real help.

A child born on this day will have advanced ideas or visions, yet will be serious, profound, studious and willing to work hard for cherished aims and aspirations.

SPORTSMEN TO RUMORS STATE PLACE RABBITS IN THE COUNTY GET NEW POST

Ten dozen rabbits will be liberated in the county in the near future by the Pickaway County Farmers' and Sportsmen's association, it was announced Saturday.

Members of the organization also voted to order a gas gun which will be used in the war against foxes in the county. The gas is used to drive the foxes from their dens. All farmers who know where there are fox holes are urged to report them to members of the organization.

It was announced that 1970 hunting licenses, including five non-resident licenses were issued in the county during 1944. Fishing licenses totaled 1559 with one non-resident. The report is not complete because licenses expire in the summer and it is indicated that when final figures are available an increase in licenses sale over the previous year will be noted.

Election of officers has been postponed until the February meeting because many members were prevented from attending the January meeting by the icy roads.

A motion was made and carried for the class to purchase trays; Mrs. Bower was appointed to purchase the trays.

The February meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Burnell Newhouse.

Kingston—Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Rice moved the latter part of last week into the Harry Raub property on Woodland avenue from the property of Mrs. Roxie Emrick on Elm street.

Kingston—Paul Burgoon, son of Mrs. Marie Burgoon, of Chillicothe, who recently enlisted in the Merchant Marine, left for New York Wednesday to take his basic training. Paul made his home with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sibrell, of Kingston.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—A report in local sport circles that Col. Larry MacPhail, former head of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is slated for "an important new post in Washington," revived rumors today that he might be named national wartime sports coordinator.

Sports personalities, who have urged the administration to establish such a post, have mentioned MacPhail frequently as a likely candidate. The coordinator would take over the handling of such problems as sports manpower, transportation, and curtailment of sports if necessary.

It was learned that MacPhail took an Army physical examination here this week, which is a prerequisite for re-assignment to a new post. He now is in the office of Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson.

MONTEVIDEO, Minn. Gordon Dakes captains the Montevideo high school basketball team, and shoots from 12 to 20 points a game but his public has to come watch him or analyze the box scores carefully to learn of his deeds. The Montevideo American plays him down, due to modesty on the part of its sports editor, G. H. Dakes, his dad.

OFFICIALS TO ATTEND CONVENTION IN COLUMBUS

Several members of the Pickaway county Township and Clerks Association will attend the 17th annual convention of the state organization in Columbus January 25, 26, 27. This will be one of the last large conventions to be held before the ODT ban on gatherings goes into effect February 1.

Principal item of business for the township officials will be discussion of adjustments to wartime conditions and plans for post-war projects. In addition to a school on the duties of township trustees and clerks, the new attorney general and state highway director will address the group. Governor and Mrs. Frank J. Lausche will be guests of honor at the banquet Thursday night at which Chief Justice of the Ohio Supreme Court Carl V. Weygant will be the speaker.

The convention will open at 9 a. m. Thursday at Memorial hall and will adjourn Saturday noon, with the Saturday session scheduled for the Deshler-Wallick hotel.

A special air-cargo packing developed by the Manhattan Storage and Warehouse Co. (N. Y.) makes it possible to ship the most delicate precision instruments to remote regions with assurance of their safe arrival. The method is based on a series of concentric containers.

PLEASE TRY THE "GOOD NEIGHBOR" POLICY ON YOUR TELEPHONE PARTY LINE

The good neighbor policy today helps a lot of folks who are sharing their telephone service with others . . . so that tons of copper which might have gone into new telephone lines can be used at the fighting fronts.

These folks keep calls short . . . because their neighbors do it.

They allow intervals between calls . . . because they like it when neighbors show them the same consideration.

They give another party plenty of time to finish talking if they happen to break in when he is busy on the line.

You'll find that if you are thoughtful about such matters, your party-line neighbors will be thoughtful, too. And it will pay dividends in better service for everyone on the line.
